1	Act East and India's North-East/ edited by C. Joshua Thomas and Konthoujam Sarda--New Delhi: Pantagon Press, 2017 This book is an outcome of the deliberations of the session on "Act East and India's North-East: How to Reap the Dividend" on the inauguration of the ASEAN Studies Centre, Shillong on 8th August 2016. This volume captures the essence of India's transition for looking East to acting East in the context of the (NER) and the opportunities and the limitations that it brings with it. A paradigm shift in policy making in consultation with the people of NER and not through the prism of security concerns could make the 'North-East to be the gateway to South-East Asia'. It gives an overview of India's Act East policy from economic and strategic perspective and enumerates on issues and areas whereby the North-Eastern states can effectively contribute to India's Act East policy.	49253

 Role stress and job satisfaction among working women/ Santosh Arora--Mumbai: Himalaya Publishing House, 2017
 This book looks into the organizational role stress and job satisfaction among women teachers, doctors and clerks of bank and LIC. The sample of the study constituted of 300 women in the age group of 18-60 years. The author feels that these are the professions in which much of the stress comes from nature and quantity of work and lack of recognition. To study job satisfaction its influencing factors becomes essential because if one knows the factors influencing job satisfaction then only remedial procedures can be undertaken to improve satisfaction towards job and reduce stress related to it.
- 4 Baofu, Peter 49262-63
 Beyond anthropology to post-anthropology: towards a new theory of centrality and peripherality in the post-human future/ Peter Baofu--New Delhi: Overseas Press (India), 2 Vols. 2017
 This document offers to understand the future of anthropology (and related fields) in regard to the dialectic relationship between centrality and peripherality (and those in order dichotomies) – while learning from different approaches in the literature without favoring any one of them. It offers a theory of post-anthropology to go beyond the existing approaches in a novel way and is organized in four chapters.
- 5 Bhattacharjee, Shibdas 49257
 India's fragile foreign policy towards neighbouring nations/ Shibdas Bhattacharjee--New Delhi: Overseas Press (India), 2017
 This book approaches to perceive India's foreign policy towards the neighbouring nations where the criterion of judgment is India's strategic and diplomatic strengths as well as weaknesses. The study unveils real state and actual strength of India's sharing land border with China, Pakistan, Myanmar, Nepal, Bhutan, and Bangladesh, as well as India's maritime interests and relationships with nations like Sri Lanka and Maldives which bears great significance and larger implications in safeguarding India's international border, territorial integrity and maritime interests in different front and frontiers; North, Northeast, Northwest and the South-coastal regions as well as the security of the rest of the nation. The venture exposes the callous approach of India's foreign policy think-tank and the failure in articulating definite policy towards the neighbouring nations and how these have impacted New Delhi's military and strategic interests in the region and beyond.

- 6 Corporate social responsibility in India: quest for socio-economic transformation/ edited by Ranjit Singh Ghuman and Rajeev Sharma-
-Chandigarh: Centre for Research in Rural and Industrial Development, 2016 49246

The focus of section two is on the new CSR and labour practices, interface of NGOs and CSR provision in India, CSR in commercial banks and the role of multi-stakeholders in meeting the goals of development centric agenda in Odisha. The third section consists of four papers on the broad theme of CSR, inclusive growth and socio-economic transformation.

- 7 Daga, Poonam 49256

Diaspora and second generation adaptation/ Poonam Daga--New Delhi: Overseas Press (India), 2015

Expatriate writings cover the paradigms of the aloofness of migrants on the strange land, their herculean efforts of assimilation, adaptation and acculturation at various levels of their living in a foreign land resulting into a distinct hybridised identity. The first generation of immigrants often attempt to retain their 'originality' in the 'new' land and in doing so they also compel their off springs to do everything to preserve the native culture thereby giving birth to double standards in their life. Jhumpa Lahiri and Chitra Banerjee Divakaruni reflected through their novels and short story collections the pathos of a split identity which they had experienced in their own life. Interpretation of vivid shades of immigrant's personalities through a variety of characters under various situations is the crux of the world portrayed by Lahiri and Divakaruni. Considering the characters of successive generations the reading evolves that the confusion and losses diminish with the descending generation and thus increase the acceptance for the adopted land. Racial discrimination, generational clashes, distinct parenting and relational disturbances are the issues that can be earmarked as the problems confronted by the people of diasporas.

- 8 Electoral politics in India: the resurgence of the Bharatiya Janta Party/ edited by Suhas Palshikar, Sanjay Kumar and Sanjay Lodha-- London: Routledge, 2017 49254

The themes presented in this book are the deliberations of the Seminar titled "Understanding the 2014 General Elections Mandate and Its Impact on National Politics" held at the Mohan Lal Sukhadia University, Udaipur on 5-7 February 2015. This volume attempts to explain the BJP's victory in the General Elections held in 2014 and offer explanations for the same by looking at three different terrains: parties, states and issues. It looks into party-level explanations of both the BJP and the Congress and how they performed among their core constituencies. It also focuses on those states where the BJP saw massive victories and also mention those states where due to the predominance of state specifications, the party could not perform well. This book also has chapters on leadership, locality, age, class and media exposure as these were important determinants in these elections. The volume presents an in - depth analysis of the electoral results, state-wise studies, the factors leading up to these outcomes, and the road India has travelled since then.

- 9 Engaging the world: Indian foreign policy since 1947/ edited by Sumit Ganguly --New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 2016 49245

Engaging the world explains the evolution of India's foreign relations from 1947 to the present day, taking into consideration international, domestic, and individual circumstances. Using a multilevel analytical framework to organize each chapter, the book provides a comprehensive survey of India's relation with its immediate neighbors (Pakistan, Sri Lanka, Bangladesh and Afghanistan), key status in the international order (United States, China and Russia), three major western European countries (United Kingdom, France and Germany) and countries and region that lie athwart India (Japan, South Korea, Southeast Asia, Israel, Latin America and Sub-Saharan Africa). Also included are chapters that specifically describe India's energy, nuclear and economic policies.

- 15 Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change. Working Group II 49268-69

Climate change 2014: impacts, adaptation and vulnerability: Working Group II contribution to the Fifth Assessment Report of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change/ edited by Christopher B. Field and others--New York: Cambridge University Press, 2 Parts. 2014

This book is the part of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change assessment focused on the question, why does climate change matter? The report considers impacts of climate changes that have already occurred and risks of future impacts and vulnerabilities and interactions that make some climate events devastating, while others pass with little notice. Risks of climate change impacts for the health and security of people and ecosystems across the regions of the earth, including the oceans and the poles; risks of climate change impacts for human activities, from agriculture and manufacturing to recreation is also discussed. Some other issues deliberated upon are- relationships among risks of climate change impacts, the amount of climate change that occurs, and investment in adaptation to climate changes that cannot be avoided; regional and sectoral key risks and vulnerabilities. Also addressed are prospects for adaptation, including opportunities, barriers and financing; broad dimensions of a climate change “solution-space” with an emphasis on cost-effective, iterative risk management that yields benefits for sustainable development as well as climate change adaptation.

- 16 Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change. Working Group III 49267

Climate change 2014: mitigation of climate change: summary for policymakers and technical summary: part of the Working Group III contribution to the Fifth Assessment Report of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change/ edited by Ottmar Edenhofer and others--Geneva, IPCC, 2015

Mitigation is a human intervention to reduce the source or enhance the sinks of greenhouse gases. The book consists of a brief summary for policymakers and a longer technical summary. Discusses trends in stocks and flows of greenhouse gases and their drivers; mitigation pathways and measures in the context of sustainable development and mitigation policies and institutions.

- 17 Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change. Working Group III 49266
 Climate change 2014: mitigation of climate change: Working Group III contribution to the Fifth Assessment Report of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change/ edited by Ottmar Edenhofer and others--New York: Cambridge University Press, 2014
 The contribution of Working Group III to the IPCC's Fifth Assessment Report assesses options for mitigating climate change and their underlying technological, economic and institutional requirements. This assessment is framed by analyses of risk and uncertainty, of social, economic and ethical concepts and of implications for sustainable development and equity. The authors have investigated trends and drivers of greenhouse gas emissions and mitigation measures for all major sectors: energy, transport, buildings, industry, agriculture, forestry and other land use. An additional chapter is dedicated to urban mitigation, a cross-cutting topic at the local scale. The sectoral perspective is complemented by cross-sectoral and cross-regional findings based on scenarios that originate from integrated models. The report provides an ex-post assessment of climate relevant policies and characterizes pathways to alternative climate policy goals and their implications at international, regional, national and sub-national levels. The report concludes with an assessment of investment and finance issues.

- 20 Kanojia, Sumita T. 49250
Women and refugee law: perspectives from India/ Sumita T. Kanojia --Umbergaon: Fidelity International Publications, 2016
The present book tries to explore some of the issues that arise when the phenomenon of refugee flow is viewed through a gendered lens by concentrating on the experience of Sri Lankan Tamil women refugees in Tamil Nadu refugee camps or settlements. Divided into seven chapters, discusses the origin, evolution and need for reconceptualising International Refugee Law and provides an analysis of why a gender-based refugee law is imperative. India's refugee policy in general and through a gender lens and the role of international organizations such as the UNHCR and domestic NGOs is also examined. Also provides an overview of Sri Lankan scenario, reasons for people fleeing to India with special reference to women refugees. After examining the historical background of the problem, analyses the situation of the Sri Lankan Tamil women refugees in the camps of India. The significance of clashing culture and divergent social norms that they face on daily basis is highlighted. Examines problems women in refugee camps encountered while fleeing Sri Lanka and in the camps they are presently housed. It examines the extent to which the present laws ameliorate the problems they face. Lastly provides an over view of the study and suggestions to deal with the problems.
- 21 Maiti, Moumita Moitra 49243
Watershed management: an empirical study at drought prone Districts of West Bengal/ Moumita Moitra Maiti-- Mumbai: Himalaya Publishing House, 2017
The present work attempts to understand the cause of water scarcity and aims to explore all possibilities of water management at a basin scale by constructing a water budget for a basin situated in drought prone Districts of Purulia and Bankura in West Bengal. It attempts to understand the interaction of rainfall, land, soil and land use at mouza level leading to seasonal runoff, evapotranspiration and infiltration. A water harvesting proposal has been formulated based on estimation of water budget for check dam construction and rooftop water harvesting. Rational reservoir size for both check dam sites and rooftop water harvesting has been designed. Suitable sites for excavating ponds, plantations are selected using spatial analysis techniques of GIS.

22 Mishra, R.K. 49247

Enhancing accountability in public service delivery through citizen's charters: the Indian experience/ R.K Mishra and Geeta Potaraju--New Delhi: Academic Foundation, 2015

Public services are used by majority of the Indian population, and the government of India has been pushing reforms to bring in greater transparency, accountability and responsiveness in public service delivery. This book focuses on citizens' charter which is one of the most effective tools used by governments' world over to improve service delivery especially to the poor. It narrates the Indian experience of using citizens' charter, at the center and states as a tool for improving governance and bringing in greater efficiency and accountability.

23 Mishra, R.K. 49252

Memorandum of understanding in India/ R.K. Mishra and Geeta Potaraju--New Delhi: Academic Foundation, 2016

The authors observe that though the Government has delegated financial and administrative powers to PEs (public enterprises) to a great extent to provide considerable financial leverage for taking prudent decisions, the result are not satisfactory. It has been several decades since the MoU system has been introduced in India in the hope of incentivizing performance, yet there are considerable numbers of PEs which are languishing in the fair and good category in terms of performance. Performance challenges still exist in the public sector enterprises which are mainly due to inadequate systems, processes, and latest technology. The focus now is on making the PEs more efficient and competitive so that they can face the stiff market competition. There is a clear direction that has been set with the Performance Management Division taking lead and rolling out the overarching PMS and implementing RFD. The RFD system provides a comprehensive framework of performance measurement and management for all the government departments/ministries, to develop performance plans in sync with the national priorities and programmes. With the RFD system in place, it will give greater stability to the MoU system and make it sustainable.

वन एवं आदिवासी : संबंध एवं परिवर्तन/ अजय कुमार राय--नई दिल्ली, क्लासिकल पब्लिशिंग कंपनी, २०१७

आलोच्य पुस्तक में बैतूल छिंदवाड़ा पठार पर निवास करने आदिवासियों एवं वनों के परिवर्तित होते संबंधों के स्वरूप एवं कारणों को विवेचित किया गया है। आदिवासियों व वनों के आपसी पूरक रिश्तों का सूक्ष्म विश्लेषण किया है। आदिवासी अर्थव्यवस्था और वन व्यवस्था विलग हो कर भिन्न भिन्न दिशाओं में प्रवाहमान होती गयी कि दोनों को ही इस विलगाव का खामियाजा उठाना पड़ा। जहाँ एक तरफ वनों को नुकसान पहुंचा वहीं आदिवासियों के बदलते हितों, सामाजिक, आर्थिक, धार्मिक, स्वास्थ्य, ईंधन तथा गैर आदिवासी हितों के कारण हुए प्रभावों का विस्तृत विवेचन किया है। बदलते पारिस्थिक तंत्र तथा शासकीय नीतियों के प्रभावों का विश्लेषण प्रभावी रूप से किया है। क्यों प्राकृतिक संसाधनों से समृद्ध वनवासी क्षेत्र में रहने वाले आदिवासियों को नगर से मिलने वाली न्यूनतम मजदूरी पर आश्रित होना पड़ा और वनवासी वन्यवासी शब्दों की सार्थकता ही विलुप्त हो गयी ? इत्यादि प्रश्नों के तथ्यात्मक उत्तर खोजने का प्रयास विवेच्य पुस्तक में हुआ है।

- 28 Right to health: theory and practice/ edited by Gunilla Backman--
New Delhi: Overseas Press (India), 2014 49258

Health and human right law (the right to health) are two very powerful and influential professional areas. Their objectives are similar: to improve the well-being of the whole population and to ensure that everyone, without discrimination, has access to quality health services. The Right to Health: Theory and Practice aims to discuss public health and human rights, with a specific focus on the right to health. Health cases from developed and developing countries are used to show how different fields (health, ethics, law, and the right to health), broadly defined, interact or can interact with one another to improve health outcomes. It promotes the practical application of the right to health and it stresses that the right to health requires effective, integrated and responsive national health systems that are accessible to all.

- 29 Sarkaria, Maninder Singh 49236

Education and development relationship in Punjab/ Maninder Singh Sarkaria--Mumbai: Himalaya Publishing House, 2016

Education and development of a country go hand in hand and one cannot exist without the other. Using secondary data on various variables such as literacy rate, drop-out rate, number of teachers, enrolment, pupil-teacher ratio, NSDP, per capita income, fertility rate, population growth rate, incidence of poverty and unemployment, etc. and primary data collected through survey of 1520 households from urban, semi-urban and rural habitations of Punjab, the study has observed that expansion of education is positively correlated with growth in NSDP as well as per capita income. Educational progress is inversely related to poverty as well as unemployment. There is a negative relationship between educational growth and fertility rate, population growth rate and child/infant mortality rate. Rise in the literacy rate has favourable impact on life expectancy. The study strongly supports the view, that the planners in the country should devote more resources to education and they should refrain from applying cuts on education budget.

Gender parity in education and employment: a global perspective / Shashi Bala--Noida: V.V. Giri National Labour Institute, 2017

Gender based discrimination in education is both a cause and a consequence of broader forms of gender inequality in society. This book is divided into three sections. The first section reviews gender parity in education and employment at global level and discusses global initiatives undertaken for reducing gender inequality. Gender inequality in education is examined in terms of out-of-school children, total enrolment in different levels of education, youth and adult literacy rate, gender parity index on the basis of gross enrolment ratio, etc. for the world as whole. Gender inequality is shown in different countries on the basis of employment by education level. Section two reviews the gender parity achieved in education and employment in India. After giving historical view of educational development, it looks into the major initiatives undertaken by different ministries and organisations for education, employment and human development. The study also suggests important policy and programme concerns which will help close the gender gap in education and employment.

Problems and prospects of business process outsourcing in India since 1990/Pradeep Kumar Singh--New Delhi: Manak Publications, 2016

The service sector is the leading sector of the Indian economy which has attracted significantly foreign investment flow, contributed significantly to exports as well as provided large-scale employment. The contribution of the service sector to the Indian economy has been manifold. The growth of service sector is based on information technology enabled services (ITES) and outsourcing (BPO) forms an important part of the IT Industry. India has gained a brand identity as a knowledge economy due to its IT and ITES-BPO sector. BPO (Business process outsourcing) is “the delegation of an intensive business process to an outside service provider who owns administers and manages it according to a defined set of metrics”. BPO is generally for back-end administrative functions that are necessary to run a business. India continues to be the dominant player in the global outsourcing sector; build around the policy of efficiency and cost effectiveness. This book discusses problems potential and challenges of BPO Sector. Highlights its strengths, weakness, opportunities and threats through SWOT analysis. It also highlights the government policies towards the BPO sector. This book discusses the various dimensions of BPO sector in India both from national and global perspective.

Urban development in North-West India: emerging trends, concerns and strategies/ Manoj Kumar Teotia--Chandigarh: Centre for Research in Rural and Industrial Development, 2016

Based on compilation of extensive data on various aspects of urban development in North-Western India, the book is an attempt to contribute to the existing debate on emerging trends, concerns and strategies in urban development in India. With the discussion on the city and state level case studies from the region the volume tries to explore how state and city governments in North-Western India have been dealing with the emerging urban issues and challenges and what sort of local policies are emerging to deal with the growing crucial urban problems. The manuscript underlines issues and concerns relating to urbanisation, housing, slums, poverty, urban infrastructure and services, urban planning and governance in North-Western India. It also consolidates the perception of residents about the same gathered from four major towns of the region i.e. Amritsar, Srinagar, Faridabad and Shimla. Urban development in North-Western region of India comprising Punjab, Haryana, Himachal Pradesh, Jammu & Kashmir and Chandigarh is at cross roads. Urban development seems to be neglected in urban policy planning over successful planning eras. The onset of liberal regimes in promoting development of real estate markets, beginning of low interest home loans, lack of strong regulation of land and housing deals seems to have made them the commodity for speculation. Housing problem seem to acquire serious dimension in the wake of rapid urbanization, commodification of land.

- 35 Understanding international counter terrorism: a professional's guide to the operational art/ edited by A. Hunsicker--New Delhi: Overseas Press (India), 2015 49259

This manual attempts to lay out a comprehensive strategy of how to deal with a whole gamut of possible terrorist incidents. It covers from bombing and hostage taking, to NBC (Nuclear, Biological and Chemical) Terrorism, what needs to be done before, during and after an event. This manual combines what minimally needs to be understood about Operational Counter Terrorism by the government-level policy maker, while at the same time helping the personnel on the first responder level who are planning to cope with what must at least initially seem like an overwhelming attack. The author feels that the only way to effectively deal with terrorism is to have a thorough understanding of its present-day characteristics such as who is involved and what weapons and tactics are the terrorists likely to be using.

Caring for our elders: early responses: India ageing report - 2017/
United Nations Population Fund--New Delhi: the author, 2017

The United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA) has been focusing on the emerging area of population ageing and working to build knowledge base urgently needed to support policies and programmes. This report titled Caring for our elders: early responses, India ageing report-2017, takes stock of the ageing scenario, looks at responses from the government and non-governmental organizations, and documents select good practices in elderly care which could be replicated on scale.

Caste identities and the ideology of exclusion: a post-script on the humanization of Indian social life/ Sebastian Velassery and Reena Patra--New Delhi: Overseas Press (India), 2016

The present study is purported to examine and understand the Indian caste system as the unique ideology of exclusivist doctrine which has its distinctive and continuous impact on Indian social, political and cultural life. This study intends to re-look at the humanization claims of the social and political activists of India and argue that the existing conditions prevailing in this country, despite having attained political freedom, is not conducive yet, to achieve human freedom; the reason is that Indian society is overshadowed with caste considerations and its metaphysical trappings where an individual is recognised and accepted in terms of his caste or ethnicity. This book explores the social, political, economic and cultural contents of Dalit transformation and the way such transformation has paved way for the resurgence of the human spirit. A central element in the humanization debate in the Indian context is the aspirations and struggles of the marginalised masses (Dalits) for a new identity and humanity based on the values of equality, social justice and human dignity.
